"WOMEN PREPARE THE WAY"

Inspired by the prophesy of the Isaiah of the Exile - "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway" - the following impersonations of the lives of some of the women of the Old Testment who helped to prepare the way for the Coming of the Christ was composed by Rev. Richard A. Bergdoll, and presented recenty in the Memorial Methodist Church.

Named by my husband, Adam, to be called Eve, the mother of all living, I lived daily in the Garden of Eden in the consciousness of being created by the Hand of God. The Garden was a very beautiful place, filled with all kind of trees, pleasant to the eye and good for food. In the midst of the Garden was the tree of life, and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. A great river was there also, parting into four branches, two of which were the Tigris and Euphrates, and furnished an abundant water supply. God provided everything for our well-being; likely too much for our own good and spiritual growth. Adam and I became to eager to learn all of the ways of life and to know all of the Wisdom, too extravagant and too zealous in our desires. Suddenly Satan deceived us and we were expelled from the beautiful Garden. During our wanderings in the Land of Nob, two sons were born. The first we named Cain, meaning to possess; and the second, Abel, meaning a breath or a vapor, since he was the weaker, I cherished until my death the words of God when He said that my ancestors would crush the head of Satan, and thru them I helped to prepare the Way for the coming into the World of One Who would save the human race from the power of evil.

Noah and I were happy in our home in North Mesopotamia with our three children: Shem, Ham and Japheth. As our family mingled with other families of the neighborhood we soon realized there was much wickedness in the world. However, we were able to maintain a life of righteousness, and followed the ways of God. One day I sensed a deep unrest on the face of my husband, Noah; and found out that God had told him to construct a large ark for the world would be engulfed in a mighty flood. As the rain began to fall, our family now numbering eight, took two of every kind of the animals and entered the ark for safety. Our faith did not fail, for God sent a seal to us in the movements of the waters. At the end of one year and seventeen days, God commanded us to go forth. God's Rainbow of Promise appeared in the sky, telling us that God would not destroy again the earth with water. I was privileged to witness the Rising New Creation of Mankind and of animals. I lived during my last days on earth, conscious that God would save His Creation in some mighty and mysterious manner from all earthly ills by a Great Deliverer.

Abrahom and I, Sarah, were enjoying a contented, peaceful married life in Ur of the Chaldees, modern Iraq, when God commanded us to so journey into a land of Promise. We were told that all families of the earth would be blessed thru us. We journeyed thru Palestine, spent several years in Egypt and then returned to Hebron to dwell. I daily tried to be a steadfast and devoted wife for my aging husband. Because I was unable to bear a child, a son was born to Hagar, handmaden in our household; and he was named Ishmael, meaning God heareth. Likely because of my unselfish consideration for Amraham to have an heir soon a son was born unto me and we called his name, Isaac, meaning laughter, for I had laughed when told I would bear a son. God severely tested our faith when He commanded my husband to offer Isaac as a sacrifice on Mt. Moriah. When we willingly rose, God spared our son and promised that his seed should be as the stars of the heavens, and as the sand upon the seashore, and all nations of the earth should be blessed thru him. The strain of this test of faith was likely too hard for me to endure; for soon after the return of Abraham and Isaac from the place of sacrifice, I died. Isaac brought rich blessings to our household, and was destined to be the father of Jacob who was to be the father of the Israelites. My dying wish for Isaac was that he should be worthy of the Lord's Promise and be a real blessing to many nations. Thus, I died conscious of my part in the Divine Plan for the Coming of the Messiah.

As I, Rebecca, left my home near Damascus one evening with a pitcher on my shoulder and went out to draw water, I saw ten camels and their attendants standing nearby. I graciously offered to draw water for them. Thus I was introduced to my future husband's matchmaker. To make short one of the most beautiful love stories in all of the Bible, I hastened to say that in a few weeks I was on my way toward Beersheba in the South Country to meet Isaac my betrothed husband. He immediately took me into his mother Sarah's tent, who had been dead 3 years, and I comforted him and his father, Abraham, during their bereavement. In a few years I gave birth to twin boys, the first born, we named Esau because he was ruddy and strong; and the second, Jacob for he was born holding the heel of his brother and was destined to overcome him. Needless to say that as these two boys grew to manhood, they entwined themselves about the heartstrings of their father and mother. Isaac favored Esau, a skilled hunter of the field; and my affection were lavished upon Jacob who was more of a home boy. At my insistence Isaac sent Jacob away to my home country to find a wife, and Esau went into the tribes of Ishmael to find his wife. I did not see my son Jacob, again in the flesh, but died longing for his return. I increasingly held in my heart the promise that his seed would be as the dust of the earth, spread abroad to the west, north, south, and east, and the vision came to me that I had helped to prepare the Way for One Who would be the Greater Overcomer of all perplexities and Problems of life.

It was my good fortune as Rachel to be the favorite wife of Jacob. We met by the well where I had brought my father's sheep for water. Jacob seemed to love me at first sight. When he told me that Rebecca was his mother, whom I had heard so much about as the native girl of Mesopotamia who left our country and married his father, I flew to my father and told him of my newly found friend. After fourteen years we were married. Several years later I gave birth to a son whom we named his grandfather, Joseph. Little did we realize that in later generations the paternal-father of Jesus should bear the same name. Not long after Joseph's birth, my husband decided to return to his native country. Our parting words - "God watch between me and thee, while we are absent one from the other" - have long been quoted as the Mizpah Benediction. On our way toward Shechem while we stopped by the Brook Jabbok, Jacob's name was changed to Israel, meaning that kings should come out of his loins. Not many years later when we were journeying from Shechem to Hebron, birthplace of my husband's ancestry, while we were camped near Bethlehem, I gave birth to my second son whom we named Benjamin, meaning a son of sorrow. During childbirth I died and was buried in a lone tomb beside the road, now fergquented by visitors. I continued to rejoice in being the mother of Joseph who was destined to become the Saviour of His People from Egyptain Bondage and prototype of the Savior, Christ Our Lord.

In the midst of the terrible persecutions of the Hebrews in Egypt by the House of Pharaoh, Jochebed, daughter of Levi, was married to Amram, a decendant of the same tribe which was largely responsible for the Worship of the One God in Egypt, land of many gods. A goodly, beautiful child was born unto us, and for fear he would be killed by Pharaoh's edit; when he was three months old, I hid him in a basket made of bulrushes among the reeds of the Nile River. Everyone knows so well the story of how Pharaoh's daughter heard my child cry one day when she was bathing in the river. Miriam, our first born, was baby-sitting with her little brother; and upon hearing the King's daughter comment about the little Hebrew boy, asked permission to call a nurse for him from the Hebrew women. Miriam came and called me; and you can well imagine the joy that came to my heart as I nursed my own child and cared for him during those tender years of childhood in Pharaoh's Palace. We named him Moses, because he was drawn out of the water. When he became grown he was given supervisory responsibility by Pharoah. One day he saw an egyptian beating a Hebrew. He killed the Egyptain and hid him in the sand; but I stood with him and encouraged him to flee to Midian; for something kept saying to me that my child would be a great leader of his people and help prepare the Way for the Coming into the World of One Who should lead all people out of the Bondage of Sin into the Blessings of Abundant Living.

(The remaining seven impersonations will be given next week.)

FHA CREDIT ASSISTS AREA FARMERS IN BOOSTING INCOME

Modern farming methods are helping the farmers in this area who are using Farmers Home Administration credit to increase their income substantially, the agency's county supervisor, Hunter P. Evans, said today.

Operating loans are made primarily to help farmers make improved use of land and labor resources on farms by making needed changes in their farming systems and adopting improved farm practices. Funds may be advanced to pay for equipments, livestock, feed, seed, fertilizer, and for other farm and home operating needs and to refinance chattel debts.

The size of a loan varies considerably depending upon the system of farming to be followed and the actual needs of the applicant.

Loans are scheduled for repayment in accordance with the borrower's ability to repay over a period of from one to seven years.

Loans by the FHA are made only when farmers are unable to obtain adequate credit from other lenders. Borrowers are rquired to refinance their loans with other lenders at the earliest possible date.

DiscussPossible Va. Sales Tax

An informal meeting of business leaders was held here yesterday in the directors' room at the Bank of Appomattox, to hear a discussion of the sales tax legislation proposed by Governor Almond. Mr. Sumpter Priddy, managing director of the Virginia Retail Merchants Association, was present to aid in the discussion. He explained the position of the state merchant's groups, and urged that a full study be made of the Governor's proposal when it is presented to the approaching session of the Virginia General Assembly.

Over 15 local business leaders were present. All showed interest in the proposed tax structure changes, but many adopted a position of withholding judgement until the actual details of how the tax change would work before forming a positive opinion.

The sales tax is scheduled to be one of the major items to come before the Assembly session, and it is most likely that business interests will desire to contact their representatives as to what course of action they would prefer.

It is also likely that additional meetings will be held at local levels to discuss the legislation.

CENTENNIAL COMMISSION PLANS OBSERVANCE OF "PEACE CONVENTION"

The Virginia Civil War Commission has disclosed plans to commemorate the "Peace Convention" of 1861, which was a last ditch effort to preserve the Union and prevent the Civil War.

All fifty states will be asked to recognize the significance of the Peace Convention was an effort by men of good will to keep the peace.

The 1861 convention was called by Virginia. All 34 states then in the Union were invited, but representatives of only 21 states attended. It was held at the Willard Hotel, in Washington, D. C., February 4, 1861.

In spite of the earnest efforts of some, the plan to settle the differences between the states which was adopted by the Convention was unsatisfactory and was rejected by Congress.

"The Peace Convention," said State Senator Charles T. Moses, of Appomattox, Chairman of the Virginia Civil War Commission, in disclosing plans to commemorate the event, "was a sincere attempt of a group of leaders who put the national interest ahead of party and special interest to save the nation.

"Our purpose is to pay tribute to those men and to launch the 1961-1965 Centennial of the American Civil War on a plan which will encourage the American people to rededicate themselves to the moral principles which alone can precent divisions in our midst."

Moses said that Virginia's plans for commemorating the Peace Convention include encouraging further research on this almost forgotten chapter of American history and publication of the story of this interesting episode across the country.

All State Centennial Commissions will be asked to cooperate with the District of Columbia Centennial Commission in erecting a memorial in Washington, D. C., which would be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies on the 100th anniversary of the Peace Convention, February 4, 1961.

The most important proposal, however, according to Moses, is Virginia's plan to ask Congress and the leaders of the principal religious bodies in the country, to set aside Sunday, February, 5, 1961, the day the Peace Convention was officially organized, as a National Day of Prayer. He said the purpose of the proposed National Day of Prayer would be to remind Americans that "the only answer to the divisions between families and nations today, no less than in 1865, is to put the purposes of the Almighty ahead of our own."

COL. WOODSON POINTS TO HOLIDAY HAZARDS

Richmond, Dec. 30.- "Don't go out with the Old Year," asked Colonel C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police and Chairman of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee, today as Virginians prepared to celebrate the coming of 1960.

Noting that January 1 will fall on a Friday to give a long week-end, Colonel Woodson asked for a sane observance of traffic rules as well as those of common sense. "Every one of our fatal crashes during the same period last year, as is the case in just about all fatal crashes, can be traced to an illegal or otherwise unsafe act of driving or walking," he said.

"Contrary to general belief," he continued, "New Year's Day, rather than New Year's Eve is the period of greatest danger. New Year's Eve is a working day for most people and the seasonably increased dangers of drinking and driving do not hit their peak until after midnight when parties are breking up. They continue as people drive from gathering to gathering during the day."

Pups nicked to head American Football League.

Financing by utilities rose in November.

In a special series of letters and accompanying data, the Farmers National Bank, of Appomattox, this week announced plans for an expansion of its capital stock.

The annual meeting of the shareholders will be held on January 12, 1960. At that time there will be the annual election of directors and other routine business. The principle item of business will be a vote by shareholders on a program involving an increase in the common stock of the bank to $140,000. This is proposed to be accomplished by an increase in the common stock of the bank to $100,000 by the issuance of a $50,000 stock dividend, in connection with which the par value per share of the stock being issued is being changed to $20.00. The shareholders of record on the date of the adoption of that resolution will be entitled to share in such dividend in proportion to their respective holdings of common stock of the bank on that date.

A further increase of the common stock of the bank from $100,000 to $140,000 is proposed by the sale of additional shares, of the par value of $20.00 each, at a sale price of not less than $40.00 each. The shareholders of record on the date of the adoption of the resolution will be accorded rights, in the proposal, to purchase those additional shares, at $40.00 per share, in proportion to their respective holdings of common stock of the bank on that date.

T. DeWitt Evans, cashier of the bank, has stated that tentative approval to this expansion program has been given by the Comptroller of the Currency, and that final approval is expected upon action of the shareholders at the annual meeting on January 12.

The entire program is in line with the record of this bank to enlarge its activities and services to the area.

In summary this plan represents a 100% stock dividend; a 6 for 1 stock split; and the offering of $40,000 in new stock.

Price Support Requirements

Eligibility requirements for price support on 1959-crop corn have been changed to increase the maximum permitted moisture content by one-half of 1 per cent, according to C. D. Lewis, chairman of the Appomattox County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office.

This is the approximate effect of the change in the basic method of determining the moisture content of corn under the new U. S. Grain Standards revised this year. These revised standards became effective October 1 1959.

To be eligible for farm storage loans, under the revised standards, eligibility requirements are that 1959 crop corn must have a moisture content not in excess of 21 per cent through February, 1960. For shelled corn the maximum permitted moisture content is changed from 13.5 to 14 per cent for both farm storage loans and for corn stored in warehouses.

Other information on price support loans on corn and other crops is available from the County ASC office.
